Background: In February 2017, the Virginia General Assembly passed legislation to declare January 14 in 2018 and in each succeeding year as Pongal Day in Virginia. The bill is modeled after that legislation.

Pongal, also known as “Thai Pongal,” is a four-day religious and cultural festival celebrated in the South Indian state of Tamil Nadu and by Tamils around the world, including Sri Lanka, Malaysia, and the United States. The festival involves a variety of Hindu religious rituals and customs, the specifics of which vary by region, to celebrate and give thanks for the seasonal harvest. The event begins on the first day of the tenth month of the Tamil calendar (“Thai”) and usually falls on the fourteenth or fifteenth of January.

Generally, the first day of the festival includes a bonfire and the disposing of unwanted household items to symbolize the welcoming of new things into one’s life; the second day involves the cooking of special foods, including a sweet rice that is boiled in milk; the third day celebrates the importance of cows to daily life with decorations and blessings; and the fourth and final day includes special blessings for the family.

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, approximately 7,200 Maryland residents speak Tamil at home. Maryland also has a relatively high concentration of Tamil speakers compared with much of the country (between 0.5% and 1.4% of the State’s population).
