The bill repeals statutory provisions that restricted specified requirements related to notice from applicability in Baltimore City. The bill also repeals statutory requirements specific to Montgomery County. The requirements are not applicable if a tenant has given specified notice to the landlord or the landlord's agent or representative of the tenant's intention to surrender possession of the property, as specified.

The bill also makes stylistic changes to existing statutory provisions.

Current Law: A landlord that seeks to repossess leased property under a tenancy at will or after the expiration of the term of tenancy (under a tenancy for a definite term) must give notice to the tenant or person actually in possession of the property one month before (1) the expiration of the term of the tenancy or (2) the time the landlord seeks to repossess the property if it is a tenancy at will. However, with the exception of specified farm tenancies, in the case of tenancies from year to year, the notice must be given three months before the expiration of the current year of the tenancy; in monthly or weekly tenancies, a notice in writing of one month or one week, respectively, must be given. In Montgomery County, except in the case of single-family dwellings, the notice by the landlord must be two months in the case of residential tenancies with a term of at least month to month but less than from year to year. Properties in Baltimore City are also subject to alternate notice provisions (generally at least 60 days' notice).

Statutory provisions set forth a process by which a landlord may initiate an action to evict a tenant that refuses to comply after receiving proper notice of a landlord's intent to repossess the property (i.e., tenant holding over actions).

Pursuant to provisions under § 8-402 of the Real Property Article, unless stated otherwise in the written lease and initialed by the tenant, when a landlord consents to a holdover tenant remaining on the premises, the holdover tenant becomes a periodic week-to-week tenant (if the tenant was formerly a week-to-week tenant) and a periodic month-to-month tenant in all other cases.
